Summary

Alexandria University delivers a wide range of community outreach projects addressing health, education, information services, and social engagement. A flagship activity is the organization of comprehensive medical convoys, providing free diagnosis, treatment, medication, and health awareness to underserved communities in areas such as Borg El Arab and Mariout. These convoys often integrate health education, disease prevention, and screening programs.

In education, the university supports literacy programs, school outreach, and youth engagement, offering basic education, scientific training, and awareness sessions for children and adults.

Additionally, public awareness campaigns address critical issues such as drug abuse, public health, and environmental sustainability through seminars, workshops, and community events.

The university also promotes community engagement and social support through counseling services, women empowerment initiatives, anti-bullying campaigns, and skills development workshops. Practical outreach includes agricultural and environmental training, such as organic farming and small-scale livelihood support, alongside veterinary services.

These activities are delivered through a coordinated model involving faculties, partnerships, and mobile outreach mechanisms, targeting vulnerable and underserved populations. Overall, Alexandria University demonstrates a strong commitment to social responsibility and sustainable community development, aligning with key Sustainable Development Goals, particularly health, education, and reduced inequalities.
